LEXINGTON, KY – February 2, 2026 - AirMart, Inc., one of the nation's most trusted aircraft sales and brokerage firms, is celebrating its 55th anniversary in 2026, a milestone that underscores the company's leadership, dedication to its customers, and long-standing influence on the aircraft ownership experience.

Founded by Bob and Carolyn Sutherlin as a small FBO, flight school, and Cessna dealership, AirMart has grown into a nationally recognized authority in the sale of pre-owned piston, turboprop, and turbine aircraft. Today, nearly 30 aviation professionals deliver the concierge-level guidance and technical expertise that have come to define the AirMart experience for thousands of owners, pilots, and operators.

A 55-Year Legacy of Integrity and Expertise

For more than five decades, AirMart has earned its reputation by helping clients navigate complex ownership decisions with clarity and confidence. The company's approach is grounded in seven core principles: integrity, professionalism, accountability, customer-centricity, safety, love of aviation, and trust.

"Reaching 55 years is a testament to the generations of customers who have trusted our team through every stage of their buying and selling journey," said Kimberly Sutherlin, Vice President of Development. "As general aviation expands beyond its traditional boundaries, our mission remains unchanged: deliver clarity, expertise, and a concierge experience that truly 'elevates the journey' for every client we serve."

Anniversary Year Initiatives: Strengthening Education, Expanding Aircraft Owner Resources, and Investing in Future Aviation Professionals

To commemorate its 55th anniversary, AirMart will launch a series of initiatives designed to support both new and seasoned aviators, including:

Advancing Toward the Future with a Firm Foundation

As the aviation market continues to shift with economic cycles, new technologies, and evolving buyer expectations, AirMart remains committed to delivering the stability and expert guidance that have defined its brand for more than five decades.
